

Auditor Reveals Slump in License Collections

Tax Collections Lower Than Last Year; Transient Peddlers' And Dog Licenses Lower; More Relief Cases

Regular meeting of the council was held on Tuesday evening. Present, Mayor Antrobus, Councillors Abousaffy, Atkinson, Ford and Jenkins.

The minutes of the last regular meeting, court of revision and special meeting were read and adopted.

John Kinnear sr. asked that council authorize the filling in of a large hole in the road facing the front door of his residence on Victoria Avenue. Request was granted.

A. McColloch asked council to dump three loads of gravel beside his garage in West Coleman in order to raise the runway to the level of the street. Request granted.

The quarterly report of town auditor, E. D. Batrum, was read and discussed. It revealed that tax collections in both town and school up to June 30 had been slower than at the same date last year. License receipts had taken a big slump from last year. This will, however, be made up this quarter since Crescent Shows pay $50 per day license fee. The shows came here in June last year and July this year. Dog taxes also took a slump this year. Commenting on this, Constable Antle stated that dog license revenue varies from year to year and that many dogs had been destroyed this year.

Discussion of considerable length took place on the licensing of transient peddlers in town. Constable Antle was authorized to "bear down" on them. It was also revealed that an outside dairy is still doing business in town without a license. As a result of the discussion it is likely the by-law dealing with licenses will be scrapped and a new one drawn up.

The monthly report of Medical Health Officers Drs. Rose and Claxton revealed that no communicable diseases had been reported. Only one complaint had been reported, that of a toilet nuisance on a back alley, and this had been attended to.

Complaint was made against a person on Second street keeping three goats. Council takes the stand that harboring goats inside the town area creates a public nuisance and a letter will be written asking the owner to dispose of the animals.

A letter was received from Walter Williams asking for a supply of wood and coal. In addition he wanted council to pay his rent in future, starting August 1. Wood and coal was granted, but the question of rent will be considered. Mr. Williams is already the recipient of $12.00 monthly relief. This in addition to his Workmen's compensation cheque totals the same amount which would normally be given a family such as his were they on total relief. His case is coming up before the Workmen's Compensation Board in August and a letter was authorized to the council to the board on Mr. Williams' behalf.

Permission was granted by the provincial government to place Mrs. John Lochrie on the 3-way relief plan.

Permission was granted by the provincial government to place Norman Plante on the 3-way relief plan for one month only and recommendation was also made by the government that this man be asked to seek employment.

A letter was received from C. F. Willis, department of Public Welfare, Edmonton, asking council to assume the responsibility of providing relief for Mr. and Mrs. Charles D'Amico, of Nordberg. Mr. D'Amico had received notice that his services at the Canadian Legion club at that town would no longer be required after July 8. Since there was no question of doubt that the D'Amicos were a direct town charge, council assumed the responsibility and Mr. Willis will be notified to that effect.

Mrs. Sead sent letter of regret that council had not seen fit to give her fifteen-year-old son town work in which she might pay off her taxes and asked council to reconsider their decision. She stated she was unable to pay taxes. Since it is known that a revenue of $75 monthly is being received from rental of a building on main street council refused to differ from their previous decision and request was refused.

A bill from Mrs. Rose and Claxton amounting to $64.00 for medical attention given to Mrs. Vollen-dorf during the period she was a relief recipient was dealt with. It is a recognized fact that all relief recipients not covered by the min-

Czechoslovak People Declare Their Loyalty

Statement Concerning the Czechoslovak National Alliance in Canada—Helping Allies in Claim.

In the present struggle of Great Britain and the British Empire against Nazism, the Czechoslovak National Alliance in Canada solemnly declares its loyalty to Canada and the Empire.

The Czechoslovak people organized themselves into this Alliance, in order to contribute morally, politically and financially to the struggle of the Czechoslovak Republic for its liberation and to fight for this cause under the leadership of Dr. Edward Benes, the head of the Czechoslovak Government in London. Every applicant for membership and his previous activities and purposes are thoroughly investigated. He also joins under a solemn pledge to do his utmost to overthrow Hitlerism.

The British government has notified the world that it recognizes the Republic of Czechoslovakia and the Czechoslovak National Committee in London as its government. The Czechoslovak army in England has now joined the British forces in the defence of the British Isles and the Empire.

Surely it would seem anomalous that immigrants who came to Canada under passports issued by the Czechoslovak government should be classified and treated as enemy aliens. They are not aliens but Allies, and should be considered as such. If any fifth columnist in Canada misuses a Czechoslovak passport, he should be prosecuted and severely punished as an individual.

As the Czechoslovak National Alliance is effectively contributing towards the ultimate victory of Great Britain, and is anxious to cooperate in every respect, the holder of its certificate of membership should be considered loyal to Canada and to the British Empire.

ers' agreement with the doctors must be covered by a $150 per month medical fee paid by the council. In this case the matter had evidently been overlooked. The bill will be discussed with the doctors and $150 per month for the past eleven months during which Mrs. Vollen-dorf was a recipient paid to the doctors. Secretary was authorized to draw up a list of all relief recipients and see that they are properly covered by a medical fee.

A letter was received from Andrew Harry regarding the damage done to his residence in West Coleman due to the subsidence of the ground beneath the house. The matter was placed in the hands of the Works and Property committee.

Permission was granted Jimmy's Coffee Shop to install a Neon sign over the entrance of his premises.

Two weeks vacation was granted Acting-Secretary Audrey Halliwell, vacation to start September 2.

Morgan McGrant stated that his water and light services had been cut off due to non-payment of previous services. He asked council to use its influence to have these services continued. Matter placed in hands of Works and Property committee.

Purchase of a new No. 17 Remington typewriter was authorized as the present machine, now 17 years old, had been discarded for some months due to its condition. Purchase was made through the Coleman Journal.

Works and Property committee was authorized to interview Contractor J. S. D'Appollonia re property in West Coleman.

An extension of 30 days of the 10% rebate on current town and school taxes was authorized by the council. Dead-line was set at August 31.

War Victims Safe in Canada

Innocent victims of a war in which their fathers are playing a noble part, these youthful exiles from England arrived unaccompanied in Montreal after an uneventful journey by Canadian Pacific service. In Windsor Station, Montreal, the young Britons showed deep interest in the railway's War Memorial commemorating the death of Canadian Pacific soldiers of a generation ago—many of them fathers of the Canadian Pacific employees who are today bringing the youth of England safe by land and sea from the horrors of Hun air raids.

A ROVING COMMISSION

Steve Janostak Reels Off a Few Thousand More Miles of Travel to Foreign Lands

Some travel "de luxe" on world cruises, with plenty of baggage and an outfit of clothes suitable for every climate they may visit. Not so with Steve Janostak, whose Nir for globe-trotting has already taken him a distance equivalent to around the world. He travels "light". Already he has visited most of the European countries, and parts of India and Asia, accounts of which have already appeared in The Journal.

It was on February 5 of this year that he quietly dropped out of sight and headed for Vancouver. In a short time he booked on a Greek freighter as a coal passer or deck-hand, Australia-bound. A stop at Honolulu was the only break in the long voyage, which continued to Sydney, N.S.W. Several weeks afloat made Steve glad to get on land, so he decided to have a good look over the island continent, the early history of which is remembered chiefly because a shipload of convicts from Great Britain were set at Botany Bay.

So by train he proceeded across the great Australian desert to Perth, the capital of Western Australia. Steve doesn't tell if he purchased a first-class ticket all the way, but he reached there looking for new adventures. He soon found a ship bound for Colombo, Ceylon, and as he had never visited this island south of India, famed for its tea, he quickly made up his mind to take a job, even though the pay was small. The grub was good and the sort of the trip he worked as a steersman, which he found quite easy, as by watching the compass it was easy to keep the ship on its course.

From Colombo he went to India, which he had visited on a previous "tour", and Calcutta, Bombay, Karachi and other important places were visited in turn. From Bombay, after a delay of some days owing to reports of enemy raiders being at large in the Pacific, he was hired on a ship bound for China. The wages were so small that Steve didn't care if he were paid or not, it made so little difference. As one port of call the sailors wanted quite a slice of the pay due them, but the chief officer gave them only the equivalent of two dollars apiece. This made them quite ugly, and there was a near mutiny over it; but the officer claimed, and doubtless he knew from experience, that if he gave them more, he would have a "devil of a time" getting them back on time to sail, drunk or sober. So the event passed over with mutterings, cursings and a curtailment of the anticipated pleasures which sailors in port after a long voyage are accustomed to.

Reaching Shanghai, Steve was paid off, and secured passage on another steamer which brought him to Vancouver. From there to Coleman was an easy jump, and he reached here in the morning hours of Tuesday, July 16, when partially disguised by a pair of dark glasses and an old travel-battered hat, and wearing overalls, he casually dropped into his father's grocery store and asked if he had seen a special kind of bobber. The deception was short-lived, and so ended with a welcome home, another five-months tour of the Far East. If Steve could write in detail his experiences, they would prove far more interesting than his sketchy narrative. He should have a "ghost writer."

Death Calls Mrs. Margaret Mitchell

Died in Hospital Sunday Evening; Came to Coleman in 1937

The death occurred in Coleman Miners' hospital on Sunday at 4:45 p.m. of Mrs. Margaret Mitchell. She was born at Liverpool, England, on June 4, 1875, of Scottish parents. In 1902 she married Mr. John Mitchell at Falkland, Fifeshire, Scotland. In 1912 they came from Glenoraig, Fifeshire, to Evansburg in northern Alberta where they resided until 1937 when along with their youngest son Jack they came to Coleman.

Surviving are her husband, and sons Tom and Jack, of Coleman; Robert, of Luscar, Alberta, and a daughter, Mrs. H. J. Thompson, of Edmonton. A daughter died in Evansburg in 1932.

All members of the family were expected to be present at the funeral which was held today.

CARNIVAL QUEEN CANDIDATES WANTED BY ELKS CARNIVAL COMMITTEE

Only one response has been received by the Elks carnival committee to their appeal for carnival queen candidates to sell tickets on the major prizes. The only candidate at the present time is Miss Winnifred Mitchell, of Carleton Place.

Being a candidate gives a girl an opportunity of making herself several dollars in addition to the honor of being crowned queen of the carnival and receiving a handsome present. Last year the carnival queen was presented with a cedar chest.

Two free tickets or 50 cents in cash is given the seller of a book of tickets and with a large sale anticipated it is an opportunity for some girls to make some real spending money. Applications will be received by secretary Nick Nicholas, M. Stigler or Jack Rush-ton.

Hospital Receives Iron Lung

Arrived Here Last Week; Gift Of English Philanthropist, Lord Nuffield

Added to the equipment of the miners' hospital last week was a new iron lung, the gift of Lord Nuffield, English philanthropist. Application for the gift was placed by Secretary George Ford in March, 1939, when Lord Nuffield offered to manufacture and donate iron lungs to hospitals throughout the Empire. It is reported 5,000 machines were manufactured.

The machines were allowed into the country duty free, the only cost borne by the hospital was that of freight which amounted to $31.67, that being the total cost from London, England, to Coleman.

The problem facing the local authorities is where to erect the machine. Space at the hospital is limited and the iron lung is fairly large as the patient must lie at full length in it. It is thought, however, that it may be erected in the north end of the sun porch. It has not yet been uncrated.

Mr. Hugh McColl Died on Saturday Aged 93 Years

Had Lived With Daughter, Mrs. Fred Cox; Funeral Held at Mortch, Sask. on Wednesday

The death of Hugh McColl, father of Mrs. Fred Cox, on Saturday last, in Coleman brought to a close a long life of activity covering over 93 years. Up till 85 years of age he maintained an active interest in the affairs of the municipal district in which he lived, prior to coming to live here with his daughter.

Death came quite peacefully. Mr. and Mrs. Cox were away on a holiday visit to Calgary, leaving Mr. McColl in the care of Mrs. W. Holley. They immediately left for home on receiving the news of his passing. The funeral was held on Wednesday, at Mortch, Sask., and he was buried beside his wife who died about eight years ago.

He was born of Scottish parents at Beverley, Wentworth County, Ontario, in 1847, and at 60 years of age homesteaded the place at Packburg, Sask., which was to be his home for 35 years. He took an active part as councillor of the municipal district, secretary of the school district, and also was an executive member of the local farmer's association. In politics he was a lifelong Liberal.

Even after his coming to Coleman, though well nigh 90 years old, he was often seen walking around town, taking a lively interest in his surroundings.

Members of the family living besides Mrs. Fred Cox, are W. R. McColl of Lethbridge, John McColl of Moose Jaw, (sons) and a daughter, Mrs. Armeau, of Tompkins, Sask.

Pucksters Win Twice Against Cranbrook

Win By Score of 10-5 and 2-8; Good Crowd Attend Proceeds In Aid of Dave Prow

Coleman Pucksters maintained their winning ways when on Sunday they won both games of a two-game series against Cranbrook Senators. Scores were 10-5 and 2-0. Proceeds from the games were given to Dave Prow, who received a fractured leg injury in a game between Pucksters and Cranbrook in the season.

In the first game Pucksters had things pretty much their own way and piled up a substantial lead in the first few innings. Leading 10-2 in the last inning they eased up on their opponents, resulting in Cranbrook scoring three runs to finish the game at 10-5. Gasmuzzi, of Blairmore, and Eliek of Coleman formed the local and Guttry and Moore the Cranbrook battery.

The second game was vastly different from the first and was the best ball game seen here this season. Stan Young, formerly of Acme and Drumheller clubs, and now of Kimberley, and his sparring mate, Livingstone, of Kimberley, formed the battery for Cranbrook, Martin and Bill Gate doing the honors for Coleman. In the first inning Pucksters took advantage of Young's shakiness to score twice, while Martin held the visitors scoreless. From then on both pitchers pitched sterling ball and were ably supported by the fielding of their team mates. No runs were scored during the rest of the game, final score being 2-0. Good crowds witnessed both games.

Mrs. Campbell, of Erickson, B.C., is the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Vincent.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Webster spent Sunday at Coleman where they attended the celebration of Mrs. Webster's aunt's 85 wedding anniversary. Thirty-eight persons attended.

An extension of 30 days has been granted on the 10 per cent. tax rebate on all current Town and School Taxes. Expiry date has been set for August 31st.

TOWN COUNCIL

COUNCILLOR ABOUSSAFFY WON THE TOSS

In order to decide which new councillor would fill the position vacated by Councillor Gentile and which one would fill the position of Councillor Antrobus it was decided to flip a coin between Councillors Abousaffy and Jenkins. The latter lost the toss and fills the position vacated by Councillor Antrobus and whose term expires next February. Councillor Abousaffy, who now fills the position formerly held by Councillor Gentile, will hold office for the next three years.

Manufacturing Speech

In the light of a good many experiences and examples of recent date one can be pardoned for speculating on the question whether the proprietors and operators of radio stations throughout the country are fully alive to their responsibilities in the matter of the use of the English language and the pronunciation thereof through their facilities.

In broaching this topic it must not be forgotten that every English speaking country, in the process of time, develops its own speech and its own pronunciation; to the people of other English-speaking countries, it might be referred to as its own idiosyncrasy of dialect. In some of the older countries accent and pronunciation have become more or less stabilized, but Canada, as a young country, has not yet reached this stage. It is in process of formation and when one listens to radio announcers broadcasting the news, one wonders in what direction we are heading.

The question which naturally afflicts through the mind is whether we are developing, in an orderly fashion, a form of speech which will ultimately become characteristically Canadian, and which will eventually be recognized as such, or are we promoting confusion and chaos so extensively that in course of time, the accustomed listeners to one radio station will find difficulty in understanding the patrons of another?

The posing of such a question with its hint of a dire outcome might be regarded in some quarters as levity, yet the implied potentiality is not beyond the range of possibility. One has only to listen to the broadcasts from a number of stations to appreciate the wide variety of accent used for the same word and the great ranges of pronunciation. And this does not refer only to place names of foreign origin which are now plentifully besprinkled through the newscasts, but it applies with equal force to many English words of fairly common usage.

Uniformity Needed

There may be some excuse for variations in pronunciation of the names of foreign towns and cities, but even here, there should be some standardization and the names should be pronounced in such a manner that they can be recognized by the reasonably well educated average listener. Frequently the name of the town quoted by the announcer is just a blur to the listener and conveys no meaning.

A writer on this subject in a daily newspaper recently complained that he heard an announcer refer to the town of Cannes, a popular resort in southern France, as "Ka," obviously attempt to pronounce the name as the French themselves do, but omitting the slight flavor of the letter "n," which the French adopt. The writer's sense of perception must have been quite acute to have enabled him to translate the sound "Ka" as Cannes. On the other hand the radio announcer who referred to the same place as "Kan-neese" betrayed the fact that he was not accustomed to moving in well informed circles, otherwise he would have used "Kan," the Anglicized version. In either case, listeners would have had great difficulty in identifying the place. One instance was an example of pedantry, the other of lack of a broad education.

But as already intimated there may be some excuse for these wide variations of pronunciation, where proper nouns of foreign vintage are concerned, but the mispronunciation of English common nouns cannot so easily be condoned, and if the coining of new pronunciations of common English words is to be permitted, let there at least be some standardization, lest there be confusion among the audience.

The other day a radio announcer had occasion to use the word "conjure" in a newscast. The listeners heard it as "Kun-jewer" with stress on the last syllable instead of the first and such distortion of the last syllable as must have caused the well informed to jeer if not to writh in anguish.

Leadership Important

What determines correct pronunciation, if it is not good usage? Who should be the source and inspiration of good usage, if it is not the well informed, those with a broad education, not necessarily acquired solely in cloistered walls?

When the use which is now being made of the radio is remembered, it should not be overlooked that the radio announcer is wielding a powerful influence in the development of a characteristic Canadian speech. The form which this speech is going to take is now in the moulding process. While the people themselves, consciously or unconsciously, will determine what form this speech will take, they will depend largely on the leadership that is given them.

If that characteristic Canadian speech, when more or less stabilized, is to be broad, virile and respected, it is important that it be inspired by the right kind of leadership. It should not be pedantic, nor should it be born of lack of knowledge and experience, and above all, if it is to be crystallized, clear cut, it should not be subjected to influences that are widely at variance.

Perhaps there should be a national school for radio announcers in order to ensure some uniformity, no matter what form that uniformity may take and to prevent the erection of a Canadian tower of babel.

Had To Celebrate

Liskeard, a Cornish town, has marked its 700th anniversary. In 1240, Richard, Earl of Cornwall, granted the first charter. The war was not allowed to interfere with a one-day celebration of the anniversary.

"The man who runs that store has the right idea, all right."

"How so?"

"He advertises 'Bagpipes and musical instruments.'"

Proverbs are short sentences drawn from long experience.

Aided In Escape

John George Howard, 87, Johannesburg, South Africa, who hid Winston Churchill in a mine pit for three days in 1939 after Britain's prime minister, then a newspaperman, escaped from a prisoners' camp in the Boer war, is dead. He helped Churchill flee by train to Portuguese territory, concealed in bales of wool.

Skilled Workers Needed

The Most Sought After Army Recruits Are Good Mechanics

Young Canada, pondering what to do in the war effort, might well envy the skilled mechanic, the most sought-after army recruit there is these days.

The military experts keep shouting that this is a mechanized war. Still of value are Rudyard Kipling's boots, boots, and the commissariat camels but they have been largely superseded by caterpillar treads and trucks.

The business of war has grown immense and delicate at the same time. Thus men who can adjust precision instruments as well as those skilled with acetylene torches and wrenches have first call in the army's needs. So, too, in the navy and the air force.

The army prefers graduate mechanics but sometimes it will take apprentices and train them. Worth of a mechanic is recognized by his pay, higher than that of the fighting man, unskilled in a trade.

So great is the demand for mechanics that the army asks that no one, seeking enlistment, hide his light under a bushel. A mechanic should explain his qualifications so that his special skill is not lost for the time being.

For those who are not mechanics, who have not had military experience, but would still like to do their part and be ready when the time comes, the advice is to keep on with the job at hand and learn the elements of soldiering at night.

That applies to those between the ages of 19 and 45, five feet tall or better, and weighing upwards of 120 pounds. These men may join the non-permanent active militia, a reservoir of manpower for the C.A.S.F. By joining it a man is not committed to overseas service and under the present law it is for the militia man to decide for himself whether or not he moves overseas on active service when his corps is called upon for drafts for the C.A.S.F.

N.P.A.M. recruiting depots are scattered all over the country. Where units are at full strength recruits will be put on the list and called when there are vacancies.

But there are those, such as doctors, engineers or graduates in some scientific or technical profession or accountants, that the army does not want presently as enlisted men. They may train as officers in the Canadian Officers' Training Corps.

Almost every university has such a corps which trains its undergraduates if they are more than 20 sophomores, and not taking certain specialized courses.

At the same time, for those pondering enlistment, experts at Ottawa suggest it is a good idea to consider of what value a man may be to the country in his present position. Those men growing wheat or potatoes, firing a locomotive, studying medicine, adding to the country's books and other kindred chores fall in the category of serving their country in their present capacity.

Only Four Exceptions

Prime Minister King Has Fourteen Lawyers In His Cabinet

It is a notable fact that fourteen of the eighteen members of Prime Minister Mackenzie King's Cabinet are lawyers. The four exceptions are Mr. Howse, who is an engineer; Mr. MacKinnon, who is an Edmonton business man; and Messrs. Crerar and Gardiner, who were formerly school teachers and farmers. Mr. King studied law but never practiced.

Thomas Jefferson once observed the study of the law is the most certain stepping-stone in a political line. Some eighty of our Commoners are learned in the law, and, generally speaking, they render fine service, but in some cases the lawyer has spoiled the statesman. Disraeli said apropos of Lord Brougham:

It was Cicero who said that the safety of the people shall be the highest law, and if the legal luminaries who dominate proceedings in the Parliament can ensure the safety of the people and of the Empire in the present crisis the whole nation will sing their praises.—Toronto Globe and Mail.

It has been stated that 12,000 tons of mustard gas were used in the Great War, causing 400,000 casualties.

Physicians of Australia have started trouble by declaring that over 100,000 women in the country are overweight.

When buttering sandwiches dip the knife in hot water frequently and it will be much easier to spread the butter.

Air Mail

Volume Has Greatly Increased Over A Period Of Three Years

Air mail should pay for itself in five years, George Herring, superintendent of air and land mail service of the post office, told the commons committee on railways and shipping. Answering questions concerning the payment to Trans-Canada Air Lines and 28 other air services of $2,250,000 last year and an estimated payment of $1,500,000 this year, Mr. Herring attributed the increase to natural expansion of the services.

If volume of mail carried were doubled, however, he estimated that in five years it would pay for itself. He pointed out that volume had increased over a period of three years as from 38,000 pounds through 450,000 pounds to 740,000 pounds last year. "We never go back," he said.

Asked about possible lowering of the rate now charged for air mail, Mr. Herring said the rate was fixed up to next Dec. 31, when, based upon the difference between the revenues and expenses of TCA he was hopeful it might be reduced.

The minister said the operating expenses of the airline would be paid more and more by passengers. He hoped that the cost of the mail, now 60 cents a pound a mile, would be reduced next year to 50 cents.

Get Into Line

Everyone Needed In Some Way To Help Defeat Nazis

In Britain the time has come for a full-sighted gaze into the truth of events. We are facing the most critical and dangerous days in the whole of our history. No time for play. No time for any inquests or for seeking to lay at anybody's door the responsibility for our present situation. No time for anything except taking the most active and determined steps to avert our peril. Time, in fact, is no longer on our side. It may be doubted if ever it will. One thing remains to be done.

Get into the line. The whole manhood of Britain, old and young, rich and poor, wise and foolish, are needed to impose their bodies as an impassable barrier to Nazi domination. Nothing, nothing, nothing shall make us bend our heads and pass for centuries beneath the Nazi yoke.

The Germans must be stopped. The last corner of the last ditch of the last land in Britain must and will be defended to the death.—London Sunday Express.

German Inedimentary Bomb Rods Picked Up In Britain

The British Broadcasting Corporation said that the German Air Force is "contributing" to the British campaign to collect and conserve aluminum.

"A number of aluminum rods about four feet long by three quarters of an inch thick, with a square plate at the end, have been picked up after German air raids on this country," said the broadcast heard by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

"The air ministry now tells us that these rods are used for holding incendiary bombs and are dropped with the bombs. It advises finders to hand them straight over to the local scrap metal salvage depot so they can be returned to Germany with interest."

Says British Empire Only Stabilizing Force Now In The World

Montreal.—The British Empire is "the only world-wide stabilizing force for law and order on the planet" and if it should fail "the planet will rock with an earthquake," Dorothy Thompson said in a radio address here.

Speaking over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation on the invitation of the director of public information for Canada, G. H. Lash, Miss Thompson replied to Hitler's "last chance" address to Britain last week.

"The plutocratic England you attack in today a socialist state," said the noted correspondent and commentator, "a socialist state created without class war, created out of love, and led by an aristocrat for whom England builds no eagle's nest or palaces out of the taxes of her people, a man who cares nothing for money, or ever has, but only for Britain, and for the coming world that a free and socialist British society will surely help to build if ever it is built."

The British Empire is "an ancient structure, cemented with blood," she added. It is "an incredibly delicate and exquisite mechanism, held together lightly now, by impermanent elements of credit and prestige, experience and skill, written and unwritten law, codes and habits."

"This remarkable and artistic thing, the British Empire, part empire and part commonwealth, is the only world-wide organization in existence, the world equalizer and equilibrium, the only world-wide stabilizing force for law and order on the planet."

"If you bring it down, the planet will rock with an earthquake such as it has never known. We in the United States will shake with that earthquake, and so will Germany."

"I think that often in your sleepless nights you realize this, Mr. Hitler, and sweat breaks over you, thinking for a moment not of a Nazi defeat but of a Nazi victory."

Prime Minister Churchill was described by Miss Thompson as "the master of the dyke against world chaos."

She did not know what spirits surround Hitler, but around you, Winston Churchill, is a gallant company of ghosts. Elizabeth is there, and sweetest Shakespeare. Drake is there, and Raleigh, and Wellington. Burke is there, and Wapole and Pitt. "Byron is there, and Wordsworth and Shelley. Yes, and I think Washington is there, and Hamilton, two men of English blood whom gallant Englishmen defended in your parliament. And Jefferson is there, who died again the other day in France. All the makers of a world of freedom and of law are there."

Miss Thompson said she expected the whole force of German propaganda in the immediate future would be concentrated on trying to break down Britain by removing her leadership.

"It seems that Germany has no quarrel with Great Britain. Hitler's quarrel is exclusively with this particular British government, and especially with its head, Mr. Churchill. If Mr. Churchill will only resign and a government come in which is acceptable to Mr. Hitler, he will be glad to make peace immediately."

This, said Miss Thompson, was a line of argument that everybody was familiar with. It had been used with Austria, Czechoslovakia and other countries that Germany had absorbed.

"It has no quarrel with any of the countries he has absorbed—only with those leaders who opposed the absorption. Mr. Hitler has no quarrel with traitors in any country on earth. They are his agents, and, as his agents, are honest men seeking peace. His quarrel is only with patriots."

Churchill and Hitler were "the very symbols" of the struggle going on in the world.

"If we can detach ourselves for a moment from all the pain of this struggle, and look at these two men we see one of those heroic dramas which literature can never approach. On the one side is the furious, unhappy, frustrated and fanatical figure who has climbed to unprecedented power on the piled-up bodies of millions of men, carried and pushed upward by revolutionary forces, supported by vast hordes of young crying destruction to the whole part of civilized man."

"Who stood atop this pyramid of steel-clad men, stretched out his right hand and grabbed a province, and his left, and snatched another. The pyramid grew higher and higher. It made a mountain of blood and steel from the top of which the furious and fanatical one could see all the kingdoms of the earth."

"But in England there was a man. Winston Churchill was no longer young. Yet, there was something perennially youthful about him, as there is always something youthful about those who have done what they wanted to do, and have been happy."

Photographs taken after the raid showed the double aqueduct unusable; the canal empty, and barges high and dry in mud.

French Merchant Ships

To Be Requisitioned By Britain For Duration Of The War

London.—All French merchant ships in British ports are being requisitioned for the duration of the war, the ministry of shipping announced.

Reimbursement for the use of the ships will be paid "at the end of the war," the announcement said, and the ships themselves will be returned to France. In the meantime they will fly both British and French flags.

This action is being taken, it was explained, so that the French vessels "may be free to serve the common war effort." French officers and seamen will be given opportunity for employment in this connection, and "many have accepted."

Text of the announcement follows: The terms of the armistice between the French government and Germany and Italy require all French merchant ships to be recalled to French ports or to neutral ports.

There are many French merchant ships in United Kingdom ports. In order that these may be free to serve the common war effort during the period of the war, they are being requisitioned under the defence regulations by His Majesty's government.

At the end of the war compensation will be paid for their use and the ships will be returned to France. During the war the ships will sail under the British flag, but they will also fly the French flag in token of the determination of free Frenchmen to participate in the common struggle to liberate France and Europe.

The French officers and seamen are to be offered the opportunity of remaining in employment in these ships under the British flag, and many have accepted.

The terms of their employment will be the same as for British officers and seamen.

Air Raid On Canal

R.A.F. Made No Mistake After Studying Maps And Plans

London.—Airmen of the Royal Air Force who raided and severely damaged the Dortmund-Ems canal, one of the important links in Germany's internal transportation system, studied a model of the vital double aqueduct where it crosses the Ems river, before making the raid, the air ministry news service disclosed.

The models were constructed after reconnaissance flights. The captain of one attacking aircraft commented: "If we had not seen the model and photographs beforehand we could easily have made a mistake, for there were several places more or less resembling our real target."

Photographs taken after the raid showed the double aqueduct unusable; the canal empty, and barges high and dry in mud.

Free From Guarantee

London.—Great Britain considers herself under no further obligation to Rumania under her old guarantee to help the Rumanians resist any threat to their independence. Foreign Under-Secretary Richard Butler told the House of Commons.

Nazi Relief Recipient

Edmonton.—A relief recipient of Germanic birth was arrested here after he had scratched a crude swastika on the notice board of city relief headquarters. He left for an internment camp at noon.

HEADS FRENCH FORCES

Vice-Admiral Muselier, commander of the free French Air and Naval Forces, is seen above as he left the Foreign Office in London shortly after his appointment.

Unemployment Insurance

Less Than Five Per Cent. Of Wage Earners Receive More Than $2,000 A Year

Ottawa.—Less than five per cent of the wage earning classes of Canada earn more than $2,000 a year and this was a major factor in the unemployment insurance bill introduced into the commons, officials explain.

The limit in the United States is $3,000 a year. In the United Kingdom it is set at £250, approximately $1,112 in Canadian funds.

Stamps will be used to keep track of unemployment insurance payments.

Employers will keep cards or books into which the stamps indicating contributions paid will be pasted. Upon the worker leaving his employment his card or book will become his possession as support for his application for insurance. Penalties are provided for illegal possession of cards or books.

The books will resemble war savings stamp books.

Roosevelt Nominated

Third Term Nomination For President Comes By Acclamation

Chicago.—Disregarding an ancient tradition, the Democratic national convention tonight nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third term as president of the United States—and did it by acclamation.

A smashing majority of the convention's 1,100 votes had been cast for the president, to the clamor of the delegates and the jammed galleries. Before the result could be announced, James A. Farley, once a third-term foe, a candidate himself, announced his support for the ticket, and moved that the rules be suspended and the president be acclaimed the party's nominee.

Banks In Paris Re-Opened

Berlin.—A German news agency dispatch from Paris stated that banks there have been re-opened. Limitations on withdrawals were lifted and interest payment on government war loans was resumed.

CANADIANS FLOCK TO AIR SCHOOLS

Typical of the young Canadians eager to help their empire in the blue of the Royal Canadian Air Force are the group of recruits as they reached Regina to train at the No. 2 initial school under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. In this group are Ken Irwin of Toronto; J. Jamieson, Truro, N.S., and Henry Hartbridge of Vancouver.

Hitler Peace Offer Is Spurned By The People Of Britain

London.—The British government spurned Hitler's peace offer with calculated silence on the ground it wasn't worth talking about.

Hitler's 96-minute speech to the reichstag did not change the situation one way or another every one here agreed. Official circles said they had no comment because the speech was the "same old stuff." The man in the street said the same thing in slightly more truculent language.

The British attitude—and it is not only the attitude of the government; but of the British people—was contained in a broadcast speech by Prime Minister Churchill recently.

"Be the ordeal sharp or long, or both, we shall seek no terms, we shall tolerate no parley," Mr. Churchill declared.

Again and again in recent months Mr. Churchill has pledged this nation to fight on until Hitlerism and everything associated with that term has been vanquished and a new world order could emerge from the war.

It was said the peace ultimatum had been expected since France surrendered and that Britain's answer—given in advance—lay in seizure of the French fleet, the speed-up of arms production, Air Force attacks on Germany and elaborate defence preparations.

British newspapers published the text of Hitler's speech, which they called an effort to drive a wedge between the Churchill government and the people. The papers were unanimous in spurning Hitler's "peace ultimatum."

The Daily Mail said Mr. Churchill "received a special translation with expert comment on the speech soon after it was delivered, and obviously he will study it carefully."

The News-Chronicle declared "Hitler speaks in vain." "If we were lured into a policy of appeasement," the Herald said, "we know that any peace we might negotiate would be no peace, but only a chance for him to perfect new treacheries and new felonies."

The Times commented:

"Hitler in effect admits that his offer of peace is purely perfunctory by attaching to it no indications whatever of terms on which peace is possible. Presumably any terms that he would now propose would be based on acquiescence and co-operation in the so-called 'new order' for Europe. As Mr. Roosevelt said, this new order is a mere relapse into tyranny."

"We can do no other than fight to the last extremity against it."

The Daily Express said the British people "will find their answer to Hitler in the magnificent words of President Roosevelt and quoted a passage from Mr. Roosevelt's speech to the Chicago Democratic convention beginning "We are facing one of the greatest choices in history."

The Daily Sketch called Hitler's speech "as cunning and false as ever" and intended to "arrest American opinion and to put Britain into a moral isolation."

The Daily Telegraph said: "His hoarse rage, now that he finds we are an insuperable obstacle to the realization of his dreams of world dominion, merely encourages and fortifies us in our inflexible resolve to blot him out of Europe."

French circles in London, commenting on Hitler's speech, said "there was nothing new in it except when he said he always wanted an understanding with Italy and Great Britain, he failed to add for the destruction of France."

Peace Talks

But No Talk Of Compromise With The Enemy

London.—British quarters asserted that three recent peace feelers by Adolf Hitler, coupled with Nazi threats, have been bluntly rejected by the British. Far from giving ear to talk of compromise peace with Germany, British quarters said that Britain is bolstering her defences to beat off Germany's threatened invasion and is now preparing for the day when the war will be carried to Hitler on the continent.

Britain Is Prepared To Defend Her Shores Against Enemy Attack

London.—The mightiest army ever assembled in Britain stands to its guns and positions each dawn and dusk fully confident of its ability to whip the German army in the field.

A two-day tour covering some 500 miles of this strange "front" revealed the vast amount of work which has turned certain areas into a series of prepared battle positions of great depth, and the ardent desire of the troops for revenge for the Flanders defeat.

As amazing as anything else in the island, suddenly transformed into a fortress, is the stoic bravery of the common people who continue to live in areas which at any hour may become the greatest battlegrounds in history.

These people, most of them men whose wives and children have been evacuated and the old folk who will never leave the land, live their regular lives while all around them fortifications widen and solidify.

It is a peculiar sensation to stand in the street of a seashore resort, now a ghost town, and watch a heavy low-flying rumble past the open doors of the 5-and-10 cent store, one of the few stores still open.

Earthworks crown hills. Concrete pill boxes and gun positions, masked by paint and foliage, command vital roads and vital landing points for air or seaborne invasion. Thousands of troops tramp the country lanes and ceaselessly patrol the numberless areas where the first German blow may fall.

Gun positions, redoubts and trenches are far more easy to conceal in foliage-covered hills than in the flat plain of Flanders.

Although fortifications are impressive in character, there is great stress laid on mobility. The general staff is able to move thousands of troops almost instantly to points where the Germans might land in force.

Coastal defences, including land traps and blocks, seem designed to entangle invaders until the full weight of the army can be brought to bear.

Mobility plus defence in depth thus appears to be the army's answer to the menace of invasion. Officers say the attack probably will be preceded by a week of desperate bombing, but they are relying on the Royal Air Force to beat off attacking planes and also on the army's concealment of its positions.

Most of the army areas have been denuded of civilians and anyone without the proper credentials is marched immediately to the nearest post.

The British have built, and are continuously improving, a coastal defensive system incorporating all they learned in Flanders plus some "new ideas," says Edward W. Beattie, Jr., British United Press staff correspondent.

The British have done a genuinely remarkable amount of work, considering the brief time at their disposal, to make their coasts—breach only a few times in history—so nearly impregnable as it is possible to make them.

They have, at any rate, done considerably more work to that end than the French did on their so-called "little Maginot line" facing Belgium, during the eight months before Adolf Hitler set off his western blitzkrieg May 10.

The keynote of the defence system is improvisation—utilization of all the advantages of a naturally strong coastline and the terrain behind it.

No one should envisage an immobile "Maginot line" of concrete and steel reared upon England's cliffs and beaches and extending back toward the heart of the island.

On the contrary, the British coastal defence is designed primarily for complete mobility and speed and concentration of fire. Every feature of the landscape can be utilized for purposes of camouflage and defence is being so sound.

Production Is Increasing

Output Of Elementary Training Aircraft Being Speeded Up

Ottawa.—Already more than 20 per cent of the 808 elementary training aircraft required for the air training plan have been delivered and production of these planes will be increased substantially, the department of munitions and supply announced.

Output of the trainers—De Havilland Tiger Moths and fleet planes—is proceeding on an accelerated schedule and some 12,000 Canadians now are busy on the aircraft production program, the department said.

Asks Reparations

Petain Government Makes Demands On Britain For Damage To Fleet

London.—The Petain government has demanded reparations from Britain for damage done to the French fleet, the Daily Mail reported.

This was one of several conditions which Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin of France says must be satisfied before there can be a basis for settling diplomatic relations with Britain, the paper said.

It added: "It is safe to assume the British government is not likely to discuss the question of reparations at this stage."

War Material Purchase By Britain Is To Be Greatly Increased

London.—Britain will spend faster and more freely on war materials in North America, Lord Woolton, minister of food, speaking for the government, told the house of lords.

The ministry of supply machinery for this purpose has been stepped up, he said, in following Lord Addison, Labor, who complained that the procedure was unsatisfactory and described operations of the supply board as a "disastrous failure."

He warned that "Germany is in control of the productive capacity of a large part of Europe and not only our success, but the success of the world, must depend on bringing the new world to redress the balance of the old by utilizing the actual and potential resources of the American continent."

Tracing steps taken to secure supplies from Canada, Lord Woolton said the ministry of supply was hampered early in the war because of considerable difficulty in turning over Canada's large potential industrial capacity for war production.

"We intend to spend freely and never to hesitate on the ground of expense in order to acquire all the munitions of war we now need and can obtain quickly," he told the lords.

Lord Addison contended that Britain needed an organization in the United States quite different from that of the last eight months and termed the arrangements for obtaining supplies of raw materials "cumbersome and almost unworkable."

WISE merchants do not wait for business to come to them; they advertise in this paper to tell people what they have to sell.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

BEAUTIFUL summer days, with bright sunshine, are vacation days. The stress of war conditions make some feel they should not take holidays. In England stern necessity has caused most of the people to forego holidays. Canada is not so hard pressed. It does everyone good to have a holiday, even if they cannot travel far afield. The relaxation from the common round of daily tasks is appreciated and we go back to work with renewed interest. In this immediate district opportunities abound for a holiday. Canada's finest vacation land is almost at our door. True, it is nice to travel and meet new faces and absorb the atmosphere of an entirely different environment. But often financial considerations curtail our desires in that direction, and a holiday near home must suffice.

Which reminds us of a man who though wishing to spend his holidays far away from his home, could not afford the expense. To make up for it, he obtained all the holiday literature he could, and had the newspapers of the various places he wished to visit sent to him. These he would read for a few weeks, and then, knowing something of what was taking place there, felt he had made up in part for the visit he would like to have made. This may be a poor substitute, and one which is not likely to be generally adopted. Here we can pack up the camping necessities in the family car and go to the nearby mountains and enjoy fishing in the streams or just loafing. Don't expect the wife to work as hard or even harder in camp than at home. Arrange it so that she too has a holiday.

AN interesting story was published in the current issue of the Readers Digest, that handy little pocket magazine which has widespread popularity. It was by Courtney Ryley Cooper, who told of how he gave up smoking. Most of us acquired the habit when quite young, and Sunday school and church influences, or temperance societies with their warnings were not as high in preventing most young boys (and later girls) from following the examples of their elders. We fall for the habit quite easily. Young people think it makes them appear worldly wise to puff at a cigarette, some even have no consideration for others but blow the smoke around the meal table, even in restaurants and in dining cars. In fact, the females are even worse than the males in this latter respect.

Opinions vary as to the usefulness of tobacco as a soothe of nerves. It is more or less imaginative to believe it is beneficial. It is comforting to make yourself believe it eases the mind, but really, does it, or do you just imagine it? The sale of cigarettes and tobacco is taxed heavily, being in the luxury class. Therefore some may feel that the more there is sold, the more taxes the government collects. The same reasoning applies to the sale of liquor or intoxicating beverages, which now are taxed to the point where people hesitate or consider carefully before they buy. But here's a useful suggestion if you think the diminished sale may affect revenues. Cut out a packet of cigarettes from your daily or weekly allowances; buy a few glasses of beer or a bottle of liquor less each week, and buy war saving stamps with the money. It will eventually help you in a few years when you cash in on the certificates you will have purchased, and it would in the present days help our government to finance Canada's war expenses. You can do a double good turn.

We started this abstemious talk on telling of Mr. Cooper's giving up smoking. We were so impressed by it that we are really making an attempt to follow his example. You never can tell where the seed will bear fruit, and if Mr. Cooper can help us to reform or overcome what some may consider petty vices or weaknesses, then the reading of his story will have been well worth while.

IN browsing around keeping one's ear cocked for something interesting, the reminiscences of an old-timer will often reveal a funny incident which tempts one to give it to the world. This deals with one old-timer who worked on the railroad. His running mates were discussing how they could imitate his voice and general conversation. One even went so far as to bet him he could walk into his house at night and even his own wife would not discover the deception. To cap the matter, the would-be deceiver said he would bet ten dollars. The husband said he hadn't ten dollars to bet, but he had an old cow in a pasture he'd bet. So, the bet was on! Two or three accomplices went to the house, the husband accompanying them of course, and the make-believe husband stomped into the place, kicked over a chair in the dark, and swore a little just like the real husband.

The good wife who had already retired told him not to make so much darned noise, to which he replied that he wished they wouldn't leave the chairs in the middle of the room. He proceeded towards the bedroom door, when, as he reached it the real husband blurted out: "Alright, you win; take the cow."

TO OIL HIGHWAY BETWEEN CRANBROOK AND WARDNER

The unsurfaced highway between Wardner and Cranbrook is to be oiled according to Hon. C. S. Leary, minister of public works. With six miles of highway east of Cranbrook surfaced, the unsurfaced portion is approximately fourteen miles.

This is part of highway No. 3 and forms part of the road from the Crows Nest Pass to the Kootenays and also to Spokane. While it is to be regretted that the road could not be hard surfaced, the abatement of the dust nuisance is a blessing in itself.

SHARPSHOOTERS

There was one wiser and sadder commercial salesman in Coleman on Tuesday morning. He made the mistake of taking three grips out of his car, and leaving them unprotected on the sidewalk while he went after sales. Now Coleman, as is well known, is bountifully supplied with dogs, especially on Main street. It took these rovers only a few minutes to discover these unguarded grips, a few quick sniffs and presto—they fired with an aim that would be the envy of all R.A.F. snipers. Moral—never leave unguarded grips on Coleman's Main street.

GIVE THE BOYS CREDIT

The names of the trio named as the Italian Song Boys, the title by which they were introduced at the farewell social to Rev. J. T. Dunbar, are Peter Bujak, Vito Birardo and Raymond Montalbetti, according to the information supplied by one who appreciated the services of the boys.

GAMBLING DEN RAIDED

The R.C.M.P. and a Constable Antle swooped down on a local gambling den, operated by a Chinaman, on Friday evening and caught red-handed the owner and seven frequenters. The owner was immediately brought into court and fined $25 and costs. The seven frequenters were each fined $200 and costs by Fred Antrobus, J.P.

VISITORS AT ROSEN'S LAKE

Among visitors from this end of the Pass at Rosen's lake on Sunday were Sergeant and Mrs. J. A. Carway and daughters Greta and Marge; Mr. and Mrs. P. Montalbetti and family; Mr. and Mrs. Oakes and the Misses Ruth and Hazel; Capt. Ed. and Mrs. Donkin and son and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Halliwell, and daughter, Audrey; Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Pattinson, Mr. and Mrs. Alwyn Haysom; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lipovski, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Janostak, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Rypien, Mr. and Mrs. Founds, Mrs. Denholm, sr., John Denholm and young son. There was also quite a number at the Canadian Legion club at McBain's lake.

MET OLD COLEMAN FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lipovski, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Rypien and Mrs. George Bieleh returned home on Thursday evening from a two weeks vacation spent at Vancouver. Passing through Pentiction they made enquiry for Dr. and Mrs. Borden and were informed that Dr. Borden has now joined the army and is stationed at Vancouver Island. In Vancouver they met Dr. and Mrs. Maclean and spent a social evening with them. Dr. Maclean sends back his best wishes to all old Coleman friends. Mr. Lipovski also spoke to Mrs. A. M. Morrison, who made enquiry about several of her Coleman friends.

The party returned via the Big Bend highway and while some portions are rough, on the whole, the road is in good shape. Mr. Lipovski gave the lie to reports circulating in town that the All-Canada highway is in terrible condition and shakes a car to pieces.

Miss Beverley Short is the guest of Miss Margaret Skead, of Kimberley.

A local young man, who was recently in a car accident west of Michel two weeks ago, is reported to have had his driver's license taken away from him.

Wm. Coupland and Al Perkins, and the Misses Evelyn Carmello and Mary Mahovitch spent Saturday evening at Cranbrook the guests of Mrs. Perkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney C. Short spent Sunday at Waterton Lakes, where Mrs. Short's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Boulton, of Lethbridge, are spending the summer.

Elio D'Appolonia is at present a member of a Dominion government survey party in the hills near Nanton. For the past two years he has been studying civil engineering at Alberta University.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. M. Brown and children, Mrs. M. Dimmer and son, all of Trochu, and Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Brown, of Spring Point, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. Holstead on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. May, of Medicine Hat, were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. James Kerr, and Mr. Kerr last week. Mrs. Kerr and children accompanied them back to the "Hat" at the week end and will spend a vacation there.

John Lloyd is now an employee of West Canadian Collieries at Blairmore, having quit his work at international mine. He is a trustee on the local school board. John Raymond has also gained employment with the same company. He formerly worked at McGillivray.

Effects of the recent passport regulations governing Canadian travel in the United States were reflected when only 14 cars were admitted through Kingsgate, B.C., to the United States during the first week of July. During the same period last year 656 Canadian cars crossed the line.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fisher and Mrs. A. W. H. McLeod motored to Calgary last week. Mr. and Mrs. Cox were called home due to the sudden passing of the latter's father and were accompanied back to Coleman by Mr. and Mrs. Fisher. Mrs. McLeod is spending a vacation with her son Fraser, and Mrs. McLeod.

Relating some of his experiences during his three weeks at Seattle, Miss Annie Nicholson states that some stores asked 40 cents on the dollar before accepting Canadian money. Even the one cent piece was refused. In order to overcome such robbery she shipped back her Canadian money to Coleman where it was changed into American funds at the 11% exchange rate.

TAX CONSIDERATION WILL BE SHOWN THOSE WHO TAKE CHILD GUESTS

Hon. J. L. Hiesley, minister of finance, announced today that that it is proposed to amend the Income War Tax Law to provide exemptions, to the amount of $400, for children from the war zones brought to Canada under arrangement through the government as guests in Canadian homes for the duration of the war.

CHAPTER XI.

"Hullo!—yes, Jackson . . . oh, is that you? Speaking from a call box, I hope? Good! Yes, everything is O.K. . . . Yes, I've heard him—but only on the wireless. I shall have to go to a meeting. He's a good speaker? Huh! So am I! A spell-binder—you can laugh! I've had four thousand persons cheering for two minutes. Don't worry . . . no thanks, I have all the money I need."

The receiver thudded down upon the hook and presently the lights went out and the lumber room door closed.

A spellbinder? Who was to be bound by the eloquence of Mr. Arthur Ingie?

He waited until he heard the projector clicking again, and then, tiptoeing across the room, reached the passage. He was sorely tempted to take one peep at the cinematograph performance, but obviously he could only do this with the certainty that he would be seen, and Jim had all a detective's horror of a "police persecution" charge.

He turned his flashlight on the table. There might be something here which would give him a clue. He saw a fat envelope bearing the name of the Cunard Company. This had not been opened, but he could guess its contents. Mr. Ingie contemplated a visit to the United States—or Canada perhaps.

The turning of the projector ceased. He passed quickly to the hall, opened the door and closed it quietly after him. The elevator was ascending as he went down, and he was spared an explanation of his surprising presence. He found the patient Elk flapping his hands to keep warm and puffing at the last few centimeters of his cigar.

SEND THE BOYS THE BEST

Fortunately Jim's club was within a quarter of an hour's walk, and as they crossed the park Elk asked, "You got into old man Ingie's flat, didn't you?"

"Looks like it."

"What's thrilling him, Mary or Doug?" asked Elk. "I hate admit it, but the cinema's my favorite sleepin' place. Or was he running through the Topics?"

"I'd give a lot to know," said Jim, and repeated the conversation he had overheard.

"Never know whether Arthur's red because he's wild or wild because he's red," mused Elk. "He's a bit of a dilly—what's the word?—dilly-dandy, that's it. There's quite a lot of genuine Reds, but a whole lot of people who hang on in the hope that one of the comrades will break a jaw for 'em." "That's so, so that they can get away with the dilly. Most people are red, if they only knew it. Take the fellow that keeps beehives. He just waits for the old capitalist bee to visit up his honey reserves and then he comes down on his bank roll."

He philosophized thus all the way across the park.

"I am almost at the end of my theories. What is yours, Elk?"

"Beer," said Elk absently, as they mounted the steps of the club.

"Looks like he's getting ready for a quick-money stunt," said Elk as they made their way to the coffee room. "But, Lord, you can never follow the minds of people like Ingie. And he's an actor, too. That makes him more skittish. As likely as not he's going to give lectures on 'My Five Years of Hell.' They all do."

Jim shook his head helplessly. "I don't know what to make of that picture craze of his."

"Decadence," said Elk laconically. "All these birds go wrong some way or other, I tell you."

The waiter was hovering at his elbow.

"Beer," said Elk emphatically.

It was a bitterly cold night, and in spite of the briskness of their walk, Jim had been glad to get into the comfort of his club. He had no intention of returning to Scotland Yard that night, and was in fact parting with Elk at the door that looks out upon Pall Mall when the club porter called for him. There was an urgent message for him, and, going into the booth, he spoke to one of the chief inspectors.

"I have been trying to get you all the evening," said the officer. "One of the park keepers has found the place where he thinks Mrs. Gibbins was thrown into the canal. I'm on the phone to him. He suggests you should meet him outside the Zoological Society's office."

"Tell him that I'll come right along," said Jim quickly and, returning to Elk, conveyed glad of the message.

"Can't those anarchist detectives find things in the Lord's bright sunlight?" asked Elk bitterly. "Half-past 9 and freezing like the devil! What a time to go snooping round canals!"

Yet he insisted upon going along with his companion.

"You might miss something," he grumbled as the draughty taxi moved northward. "You ain't got my power of observation and deduction. Anyway, I'll bet we're wasting our time. They'll show us the hole in the water where she went in, most likely."

"In fact, it's been frozen since the day after the body was found."

Mr. Elk growled something under his breath; whether it was an uncomplimentary reference to the weather or to the tardiness of park keepers Jim did not gather.

It was not a keeper but an inspector who was waiting for them outside the Zoological office. The discovery had been made that afternoon, but the keeper had not reported the matter until late in the evening. He took a seat in their taxi and under his direction they drove back some distance to the place where a bridge crosses the canal to a study of the various aspects of the fifty-foot stretch of grass land and trees. This verge in summer affords a playing ground for children, and has from their point of view the attraction of dipping down in a steep slope to the banks of the canal, which, however, is separated from the park by a row of wooden palings wired to form an unclimbable fence. The playground is reached from the road by a broad iron gate running parallel with the bridge, and this, explained the park inspector, was locked at night.

"Occasionally somebody forgets," he said, "and I remember having it reported to me on the night after this woman's disappearance that the gates were found open in the morning."

He led the way cautiously down the steep declivity toward the fence which runs by the canal bank. Here is a rough path, and along this they trudged over ground frozen hard.

"One of our keepers had to make an inspection of the fence this afternoon," the officer went on, "and we found that the palings had been wrenched from one of the supporting posts. Afterward somebody must have put them up again, and did the job so well that we have never noticed the break."

They had now reached the spot, and a powerful light thrown along the fence revealed the extent of the damage. A wire strand and one of the palings had been broken, and the officer had only to push lightly at the fence to send it sagging drunkenly toward the canal. He put his foot upon it, and with a creak it lay over so that he could have walked without any difficulty on to the canal bank.

"Our man thought that the damage had been done by boys, until he saw the hat."

"Which hat?" Jim asked him quickly.

"I left it here for you to see exactly as he found it."

The superintendent's light traveled along a bush, and presently focused upon a crushed brown object, which had been cast between two branches of the bush. Jim looked at the pitiable relic, a brown felt hat, stained and cut about the crown. It might easily, he saw, have been dragged off in a struggle, and against the autumnal coloring of the undergrowth would have escaped notice.

"Here is another thing," said the park officer. "Do you see that? It was the first thing I looked for, but I have no doubt that you gentlemen will understand better than I what it signifies."

It was the impress of a heel in the frozen ground. By its side a queer, flat footprint, cross-crossed with innumerable lines.

"Somebody who wore rubbers," said Elk, going down on his knees.

"There has been a struggle here. Look at the sideways thrust of that heel! And—"

"What is this?" asked Jim sharply. His lamp was concentrated upon a tiny frozen puddle, and Elk looked but could see nothing but its gray-white surface. Knowing Jim took a knife from his pocket and began to scrape the ice; and now his companion saw what had attracted his attention: a piece of paper. It was an envelope which had been crushed into the mud. When he got the frozen object into the light it was frozen to the shape of the heel that had trodden upon it. Gently he scraped away the mud and ice until two lines were legible. The first was at the top left-hand corner and was heavily underlined.

BY HAND: URGENT

Only one line of the address was legible, but the word "Harlow" was very distinct.

Doctor Of Philosophy

Dr. Robt. Glen, of Saskatoon, contributes To Knowledge Of Wire Worm Problems

Robert Glen, Assistant Entomologist, at the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Saskatoon, Sask., has recently been granted the degree of Doctor of Philosophy by the University of Minnesota. Dr. Glen was appointed to the staff of the Saskatoon Laboratory in 1923. He was born in Paisley, Scotland, and came to Canada at an early age. At the University of Saskatchewan he obtained the degrees of Bachelor of Science with honours in Biology, in 1929, and Master of Science (Entomology) in 1931. Further graduate work in entomology was taken at the University of Minnesota and at Washington, D.C.

He has been engaged primarily in a study of the various aspects of the wireworm problem in Western Canada, and in recent years has devoted much time to studying the characters by which the different species of wireworms can be distinguished. His latest dissertation, entitled "Larval Morphology and Taxonomy of the Tribe Lepturini with Special Reference to the Genus Lilius Esch.", Dr. Glen has described and illustrated, in great detail, characters for the identification of the larvae of eighty-four species, and is already recognized as a competent authority as to outstanding contribution to science and to applied entomology in particular.

Technical Agriculture

Canadian Agriculture Needs Scientific Aid And Leadership

Canadian agriculture has many difficult problems to deal with in the next few years, said Dr. J. J. Swaine, Director, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, in a recent address. It needs leadership and guidance, and for this it must depend in large part upon scientific agriculture. There is an opportunity now for technical agriculture to give leadership in:

A more complete provision for producing and marketing agricultural products to meet the requirements of Canadian consumers; the production of agricultural products for Great Britain and allies in so far as their needs can be foreseen; the maintenance of a production level from which any required increase could be made to supply the needs of Britain and the allies; the maintenance of the productive capacity of Canadian soils; the maintenance of a proper agricultural stability, without unnecessary surpluses or shortages, which will enable the proper adjustments to be made to meet post war conditions.

Women Outnumber Men

In most countries, even before the outbreak of war, the women outnumbered the men, according to statistics compiled in London, early in 1940. For every 1,000 men there were 1,088 women in Britain, 1,071 in France, 1,058 in Germany, 1,108 in Russia, 1,097 in Portugal and 1,189 in Estonia. In the United States for every 1,000 men there were only 976 women.

About 8,540,000 men lost their lives in the first world war. 2369

The Earl Of Athlone

Fays Visits To The Air Force At Rockcliffe Air Station

The Earl of Athlone has paid formal calls at Ottawa on the chiefs of the Canadian fighting forces, but it's the air force men at Rockcliffe air station who really know him. As one flying officer here put it, the governor-general is a regular guy.

The earl found a good bridge path from Rideau Hall grounds to Rockcliffe airdrome where surrounding fields are splendid for his morning canter.

When the governor-general galloped across the fields for the first time, the flying officer ordered him to stop and informed him such incursions were not permitted unless authorized.

His Excellency, somewhat taken back by this young man, leaned down from his horse and said: "But I'm Athlone."

"I know sir," replied the officer. "But you still are not allowed in this area without permission."

So the commander-in-chief of the Canadian forces rode to the airport entrance.

In the meantime, the flying officer excitedly telephoned a wing commander of the incident. The wing commander bundled into his uniform and rushed to greet His Excellency.

Then in the small guardhouse full authority was written out for the earl to take his daily ride over the air station grounds, and he accepted an invitation to breakfast in the officers' mess.

Zephiran Has Quicker Effect On Some Germs Than Iodine

Efficacious is iodine, which will destroy all but five per cent of the germs with which it comes in contact within a minute of application.

But a relatively new antiseptic invented by a German chemist, Gerhard Domagk, (who's have got the 1939 Nobel prize in physiological medicine if Hitler hadn't mixed it) has an even quicker effect on a greater percentage of germs. It's called zephiran.

Used To Being Careful

Youthful English Visitors Spread Butter And Jam Thin

Conditions in Britain and Canada differ widely, judging by the conversation and conduct of the youthful newcomers from abroad, now enjoying Canadian hospitality and safety.

Two small visitors waited for their host at the street side. "Hello, England," gushed a passing Canadian. No response. The second call brought a polite "Good morning, Canada."

"It is 'pils' to see our little guests spread their butter and jam so thin, as, of course, they are compelled to do at home," remarked one hostess.

"Driving out to make a call with them the other day I was unable to park and said we should drive around the block—you know how it is. Then from the little lad in the back seat I heard: 'My word! What a rotten waste of petrol!'"
